from Mind the Gap Football

Hey y'all! Welcome to the Mind the Gap Football 2025 NFL Draft Guide. In this guide you'll find two mock drafts, one of which predicts the first 102 picks, as well as our Top 100 players, ranked and broken down by position. To listen to all of our positional breakdowns make sure to check us out on Spotify and Youtube! Thanks for reading! - Aaron Palsgrove

Our Chaos Mock Draft

This mock draft isn't meant to predict Thursday night's outcome (for that keep on scrolling, there's a three round mock right beneath this), but to give you a glimpse into our thinking about both this prospect class and what each team needs. We broke this mock, like most of those that we do, into thirds with each of us taking one third of the first round teams. Trades must be done between cohosts, and the goal here is to do what WE would do as NFL GM's, using our personal rankings as our draft board. So if you hate a pick, blame that cohost, this was us standing our ground and drafting our guys. - Palsgrove

Our Final Mock Draft

This mock is our perfect, infallible, not at all going to be wrong mock draft. Except there are no trades and it's impossible to fully predicted NFL execs. But besides that it's perfect. This mock is meant to predict the moves, or at least the directions that teams will be drafting on Thursday night.

Some things of note. We've talked ad nauseum about how this class is an excellent one to need edge rushers, interior d-line, and corner, and in this mock 15 of the first 32 picks are from those three positions. Also, expect to see a night of runs on Thursday, especially at wide receiver. Look at how we began the second round. I'd expect to see that scenario, or something very similar to it, playing out. Thanks for reading! - Palsgrove
